Breaking Ranks Colin Diver, 2022-04-12 Some colleges will do anything to improve their national ranking That can be bad for their students and for higher education Since U S News World Report first published a college ranking in 1983 the rankings industry has become a self appointed judge declaring winners and losers among America s colleges and universities In this revealing account Colin Diver shows how popular rankings have induced college applicants to focus solely on pedigree and prestige while tempting educators to sacrifice academic integrity for short term competitive advantage By forcing colleges into standardized best college hierarchies he argues rankings have threatened the institutional diversity intellectual rigor and social mobility that is the genius of American higher education As a former university administrator who refused to play the game Diver leads his readers on an engaging journey through the mysteries of college rankings admissions financial aid spending policies and academic practices He explains how most dominant college rankings perpetuate views of higher education as a purely consumer good susceptible to unidimensional measures of brand value and prestige Many rankings he asserts also undermine the moral authority of higher education by encouraging various forms of distorted behavior misrepresentation and outright cheating by ranked institutions The recent Varsity Blues admissions scandal for example happened in part because affluent parents wanted to get their children into elite schools by any means necessary Explaining what is most useful and important in evaluating colleges Diver offers both college applicants and educators a guide to pursuing their highest academic goals freed from the siren song of the best college illusion Ultimately he reveals how to break ranks with a rankings industry that misleads its consumers undermines academic values and perpetuates social inequality

Student Use of Rankings in National Magazines in the College Decision-making Process Michele Howard McManus, 2002 College rankings are widely depicted as vital tools for making informed decisions about the college selection process Based on sales volume and the diversity of ratings currently in existence there is little doubt that rankings are big business and are undeniably here to stay On the other hand very little factual information is available about students actual use of rankings in the college decision making process It is clear that rankings such as those published by US News World Report are now part of the landscape in our system of higher education However the problem is to establish the extent students use rankings and to determine user characteristics based on demographics and institutional type The paramount purpose of this research study is to determine the importance of college rankings in national magazines on students institutional choice Analysis of data provided by the Cooperative Institutional Research Program CIRP provides a greater understanding of the impact of rankings on students college decision making process Specific research questions for this study include 1 Do students perceive college rankings to be an important factor in selecting their institution of choice 2 Does the importance attached to rankings vary significantly when response patterns are examined between students attending ranked national universities and those schools that are not ranked 3 Does the importance attached to rankings vary significantly when response patterns are examined between students attending ranked national liberal arts colleges and those colleges that are not ranked 4 Does the importance attached to rankings vary significantly when response patterns are examined between students attending public or private national universities 5 Does the importance attached to college rankings in national magazines vary significantly when response patterns are examined by gender age place of residence distance from permanent home academic achievement financial status or ethnicity Utilizing two US News ranking categories a total of 40 institutions from 13 states in differing geographic regions were selected for this research Public and private institutions and ranked and unranked schools were included in this analysis In addition each of these colleges participated in the CIRP for fall 2000 For this study there are 14 541 first time full time freshmen represented in the sample Of these students 8827 attend national universities while 5714 are enrolled in liberal arts colleges The majority of students included in this study placed some level of importance on college rankings Ratings in newsmagazines are of particular importance to first time full time freshmen attending ranked private institutions In addition students who deem rankings as important are traditionally aged live on campus attend a school a significant distance from home and have a high level of financial status

The College Completion Glass—Half-Full or Half-Empty? Tiffany Beth Mfume, 2018-12-21 Despite the Great Recession and looming student loan debt crisis, college education remains the most proven, invaluable lifetime investment and serves as the most reliable path to upward mobility and socioeconomic class reassignment. Mfume suggests that the value added of even one year of college can be transformative. As higher education professionals and partners continue to advocate for new and improved college retention and graduation measures, The College Completion Glass: Half Full or Half Empty: Exploring the Value of Postsecondary Education presents a new paradigm for higher education, one that focuses on the value added of postsecondary education as well as on student success beyond the traditional measure of college graduation rates. A model which merges conventional practices and supports for students with non-traditional partnerships with and advocacy from successful non-completers. Choosing a College Norah Piehl, 2012-04-06 More than ten compelling essays debate the issues surrounding choosing a college. Readers will evaluate topics such as whether paid admission consultants are useful and whether students should consider taking a year off between high school and college. Essay sources include the Philadelphia Inquirer Editorial Staff, Natalia Maldonado, Peter Vartanian, and Julia Reischel. A Student's Unfiltered

The Path to Equity Bill Coplin, 2023-07-03 Coplin has been saving students from the damage done by the bait and switch business model of the liberal arts programs for fifty years The bait promises career preparation and the switch is to teach undergraduates how to be scholars He demonstrates how the Kingdom of Liberals Arts programs are based on an elitist attitude that is harmful to most undergraduates who value career preparation over love of learning This elitism leads to increased anxiety for college students and a college completion rate lower than the worst high schools in the U S He shows how the elitism does not serve equity and inclusion but does the opposite He demonstrates that the harm is not just confined to undergraduate education but to many socio economic conditions in American society The Kingdom has contributed to a K 12 education system that sends too many students to college and prevents the resources needed for careers without a college education It shares some of the blame for the lack of skill and semi skilled labor in this country Coplin ends on a positive note by showing that some progress in transforming the Kingdom to an institution that serves its undergraduates has occurred but much more needs to be done He suggests three most important structural changes need to quicken the pace of change and contribute to rather than prevent equity and inclusion
