exploitation and the entrenched inequities of the workplace Rebecca Traister author of Good and Mad As I sat in the front row that day I was 80 percent faking it with a 100 percent real Gucci bag Samhita Mukhopadhyay had finally made it she had her dream job dream clothes dream life But time and time again she found herself sacrificing time with family and friends paying too much for lattes and limping home after working twelve hours a day Success didn't come without costs right Or so she kept telling herself And Mukhopadhyay wasn't alone Far too many of us are taught that we need to work ourselves to the bone to live a good life That we just need to climb up the corporate ladder to lean in and hustle to enact change But as Mukhopadhyay shows these definitions of success are myths and they are seductive ones Mukhopadhyay traces the origins of these myths taking us from the sixties to the present She forms a critical overview of workplace feminism looking at stories from her own professional career analysis from activists and experts and of course experiences of workers at different levels As more individuals continue to question whether their professional ambitions can lead to happiness and fulfillment in the first place Mukhopadhyay asks What would it mean to have a liberated workplace Mukhopadhyay emerges with a vision for a workplace culture that pays fairly recognizes our values and gives people access to the resources they need A call to action to redefine and reimagine work as we know it The Myth of Making It is a field guide and manifesto for all of us who are tired searching for justice and longing to be liberated from the oppressive grip of hustle culture
