Media Handling The Good The Bad And The Pointless:

Media Handling George Mitchell, 2011-07-14 Nine out of ten media releases are ignored This book puts a friendly arm on the shoulder of industry and government ushers them to one side and has a quiet word about the reality of media handling what the news media will and won't run and what media coverage can and can't achieve It explains why some news media campaigns marshal fellow travellers and run out of steam after that why some succeed in marshalling target audiences beyond fellow travellers and why some fail to marshal anybody Not even fellow travellers It wanders into crisis management too and explains why some organisations can't seem to avoid mucking up a disaster Some resort to spin the most over rated tactic of them all It's true that skilful media handling can maximise the positive coverage if you're doing a good job and it can prevent you looking even worse if you're doing a bad job But it cannot give bad people good media coverage With a focus on Australia and a few examples from Britain and America the case studies range from the inspired to the inept from the savvy to the deluded Chapter 1 media releases that work You'll get better results if you treat journalists as partners rather than the enemy Chapter 2 back foot media handling Making sure you GET IT will save your career when things go wrong Chapter 3 news media campaigns The good the bad and the pointless Chapter 4 social media New media doesn't change old rules You still need to know what news is and what it isn't

Factors Affecting how Individuals Explain Their Behavioral Intention to Others Hye Jeong Choi, 2008 Previous research mainly investigated which of attitudinal and normative determinants would be more prominent in terms of predicting behavioral intention By taking an approach drastically different from previous TRA Theory of Reasoned Action research this thesis focused on how attitude toward a behavior and perceived norms would influence individuals' intentions to use various reasons when explaining their behavioral intention to others Also this study examined how different cultures would influence people's citation of the same components which were related to behavioral intention The study did not show that one culture always use attitudinal components to explain individuals' behavior intention while the other always use normative components to explain individuals' behavior intention It provided the evidence that TRA components would influence differently depending on the type of behavior Furthermore the relationships that attitudinal and normative components had with behavioral intention to engage in behaviors were not the same for the relationship that attitudinal and normative determinants had with intentions to use attitude related reasoning and norm related reasoning The behavioral type and the norm types were important factors for the relationships among attitude norms and various types of intentions
