clothing with sensors and LEDs and bunny Huang who knows the ins and outs of the Shenzhen China electronics parts markets as well as anyone. As all the interviews in Makers at Work show, makers have something in common: reverence for our technical past coupled with an aversion to convention. If they can't invent new processes or products, it's simply not worth doing. Crazy as it may seem, makers working in the spirit of Tesla, Wozniak, Edison, Gates, Musk, and many others can bring sophisticated products to the people or to the market as fast or faster than large corporations. And they are not just enabling new technologies and devices; they are changing the way these devices are funded, manufactured, assembled, and delivered. Makers at Work puts a spotlight on the maker mindset and motivation of those who are reinventing the world, one object or idea at a time. You will meet the individuals who define what it means to be a maker. Learn about the tools and technologies driving the new industrial revolution. Discover ways to scale your weekend project into a profitable business. See how others have used crowdfunding to make their visions a reality. Learn how open source hardware and software is enabling whole new categories of products by removing barriers of entry for inventors. The new masters of the Makerverse ask two questions: Can it be done? Is it fun? As these interviews will show, the answer to both questions is: Let's find out.

Racisms in a Multicultural Canada Angie Fleras, 2014-04-29
In acknowledging the possibility that as the world changes, so too does racism, this book argues that racism is not disappearing despite claims of living in a post-racial and multicultural world. To the contrary, racisms persist by transforming into different forms whose intent or effects remain the same: to deny and disallow as well as to exclude and exploit. Racisms in a Multicultural Canada is organized around the assumption that race is not simply a set of categories and that racism is not just a collection of individuals with bad attitudes. Rather, racism is as much a matter of interests as of attitudes, of property as of prejudice, of structural advantage as of personal failing, of whiteness as of the other, of discourse as of discrimination, and of unequal power relations as of bigotry. This multidimensionality of racism complicates the challenge of formulating anti-racism and anti-colonialist strategies capable of addressing it. Employing a critical framework that puts politics and power at the centre of analysis, this book focuses on why racisms proliferate, how they work, in contemporary societies and how the way we think and talk about racism changes over time Specifically it examines the working of contemporary racisms in a multicultural Canada that claims to abide by principles of multiculturalism and a commitment to a post racial society Generation Z Victoria Carrington,Jennifer Rowsell,Esther Priyadharshini,Rebecca Westrup,2015-12-17 This book argues that the mythic figure of the zombie so prevalent and powerful in contemporary culture provides the opportunity to explore certain social models such as childhood and school class and family that so deeply underpin educational policy and practice as to be rendered invisible It brings together authors from a range of disciplines to use contemporary zombie typologies slave undead contagion to examine the responsiveness of everyday practices of schooling such as literacy curriculum and pedagogy to the new contexts in which children and young people develop their identities attitudes to learning and engage with the many publics that make up their everyday worlds Weekly Florists' Review Gilbert Leonard Grant,1929
