Mergers in Higher Education

The Experience from Northern Europe

This book addresses the state-of-the-art of research on mergers involving higher education institutions. It is based on a comprehensive research project spanning four spring and summering the observations of mergers involving higher education institutions across the Nordic countries – Norway, Sweden, Finland and Denmark. The study involved doing in-depth studies from the regions and aimed at shedding critical light on and providing novel contributions across the following key aspects:

- Conceptual and theoretical approaches – strengths and weaknesses – towards the study of the phenomenon of mergers in higher education;
- Historical developments leading to significant structural changes in the Northern higher education landscape and, in turn, how mergers have been used as a policy instrument of education for better adaptation to a new national environment in the local, national, regional and international levels;
- The complex process involved in merger processes by understanding an in-depth investigation of a series of selected case studies, with a particular focus on the “black box” associated with the implementation process;
- The implications of the findings on public service policy and strategic institutions, future developments and future research agenda.
