Time United States. National Education Commission on Time and Learning, 1994 The Education Council Act of 1991 established the National Education Commission on Time and Learning as an independent advisory body and called for a comprehensive review of the relationship between time and learning in U S schools This document serves as a supplementary volume to the commission s first report released in May 1994 which found that most school reform designs are structurally flawed by their adherence to a traditional school calendar This volume describes innovative approaches to the use of school time It provides nearly 40 examples of exemplary efforts to make better use of available time and extend the amount of time students spend learning The brief program descriptions are from 15 elementary schools 15 middle and senior high schools 4 districtwide efforts and 6 special programs They include public and private schools in rural urban and suburban areas from 26 states Information for reaching contact persons is provided A review of the programs indicates that many different kinds of schools and districts have already implemented many of the commission s recommendations The most common approaches in descending order include 1 redesigning available time 2 employing technology 3 extending the school day or year 4 providing time for professional development and 5 providing support services for children or families Finally the approaches to the redesign of time usage differ by school level LMI
