Rethinking Rural Health Ethics Christy

Simpson, Fiona McDonald, 2017-08-13 This book challenges readers to rethink rural health ethics Traditional approaches to health ethics are often urban centric making implicit assumptions about how values and norms apply in health care practice and as such may fail to take into account the complexity depth richness and diversity of the rural context There are ethically relevant differences between rural health practice and rural health services delivery and urban practice and delivery that go beyond the stereotypes associated with rural life and rural health services This book examines key values in the rural context that have not been fully explored or taken into account when we examine health ethics issues including the values of community and place and a need to revalue relationships It also advocates for a greater attention to meso and macro level analysis in rural health ethics as being critical to ethical analysis of rural health care This book is essential reading for those involved in health ethics rural health policy and governance and for rural health providers The Social Context of Birth

Silbermann, 2020-10-29 The new global cancer data suggests that the global burden has risen to 18.1 million new cases per year and 9.6 million cancer deaths per year A number of factors appear to be driving this increase in particular a growing and aging global population and an increase of exposure to cancer risk factors linked to social and economic development For rapidly growing economies the data suggests a shift from poverty or infection related cancers to those associated with lifestyles more typical in industrialized countries There is still large geographical diversity in cancer occurrence and variations in the magnitude and profile of the disease between and within world regions There are specific types of cancer that dominate globally lung female breast and colorectal cancer and the regional variations in common cancer types signal the extent to which societal economic and lifestyle changes interplay to differentially impact on the profile of this most complex group of diseases Unfortunately despite advances in cancer care a significant proportion of patients at home experience sub optimal outcomes Barriers to successful treatment outcomes include but are not limited to access to oncologists in the primary health centers non adherence lack of experienced oncology and palliative care nurses in the community inadequate monitoring and the lack of training of family and pediatric physicians Telemedicine approaches including telephone triage education telemonitoring teleconsultation and status tracking through mobile applications have shown promise in further improving outcomes in particular for chronic cancer patients following their hospitalization Lessons can be learned from existing hospices in North America the United Kingdom Australia Centers of Excellence in African Uganda and modern community services in India Kerala An important goal of this book is to describe and encourage professionals to develop new community programs in palliative care which include training and empowering physicians and nurses in the community on the principles of palliative care The Middle East Cancer Consortium MECC together with the American Society of Clinical Oncology ASCO and the American Oncology Nursing Society ONS have conducted multiple courses ranging from basic palliative care to more specialized training in palliative care for multiple nationalities in Europe Asia and Africa Our experience clearly indicates that to promote such activities one needs strong leadership and confirmed political will to support the endeavor The new book will emphasize the importance of having a core of multiple stakeholders including community leaders government NGOs and media to be actively involved in advocating for the cause and generating public awareness This text will provide the reader with a comprehensive understanding of the outside of the hospital treatment of cancer patients by medical paramedical and volunteer personnel In doing so this text will encourage the creation of new palliative care services improving upon the existing ones and stimulate further research in this field Part 1 of the text will begin with an overview of the current state of affairs of services provided to cancer patients while being cared for by primary health centers It will also review the current literature regarding medical and psychological based therapy options in the community for cancer patients at different stages of their disease Part 2 will address the unique role of the community nurse within the framework of the multidisciplinary team treating the patient in the attempt to provide optimal evaluation and care in very challenging situations such as with terminal patients Part 3 will provide insightful models of this new discipline and serve as a valuable resource for physicians nurses social workers and others involved in the care of cancer patients The book will take a multidisciplinary approach integrating clinical and environmental data for practical management to enhance the efficacy of treatment while relieving suffering Part 4 will also discuss the application of modern technological approaches to track symptoms quality of life diet mobility duration of sleep and medication use including pain killers in chronic cancer patients in the community Part 5 of the book will also be devoted to modes of developing a collaborative program between governmental and non governmental organization sectors This includes volunteer workers in close collaboration with medical professionals for providing emotional and spiritual support nursing care nutritional support and empowering family caregivers Such a model makes palliative care in the community a people s movement thus transferring part of the responsibility and ownership to the community

Key Concepts and Issues in Nursing Ethics P. Anne Scott, 2017-03-08 Short case studies based on real stories from the health care arena ensure that each chapter of this book is rooted in descriptions of nursing practise that are grounded salient narratives of nursing care The reader is assisted to explore the ethical dimension of nursing practice what it is and how it can be portrayed discussed and analysed within a variety of practice and theoretical contexts One of the unique contributions of this book is to consider nursing not only in the context of the individual nurse patient relationship but also as a social good that is of necessity limited due to the ultimate limits on the nursing and health care resource This book will help the reader consider what good nursing looks like both within the context of limitations on resources and under conditions of scarcity Indeed any discussion of ethical issues in nursing should be well grounded in a conceptualisation of nursing that nursing students and practising nursing can recognise accept and engage with Nursing like medicine social work and teaching has a clear moral aim to do good In the case of nursing to do good for the patient However it is vital that in the pressurised constrained health service of the 21st century we help nurses explore what this might mean for nursing practice and what can reasonably be expected of the individual nurse in terms of good nursing care
