Jazz and the Philosophy of Art Lee B. Brown, David Goldblatt, Theodore Gracyk, 2018-01-31 Co authored by three prominent philosophers of art Jazz and the Philosophy of Art is the first book in English to be exclusively devoted to philosophical issues in jazz It covers such diverse topics as minstrelsy bebop Voodoo social and tap dancing parades phonography musical forgeries and jazz singing as well as Goodman's allographic autographic distinction Adorno's critique of popular music and what improvisation is and is not The book is organized into three parts Drawing on innovative strategies adopted to address challenges that arise for the project of defining art Part I shows how historical definitions of art provide a blueprint for a historical definition of jazz Part II extends the book's commitment to social historical contextualism by exploring distinctive ways that jazz has shaped and been shaped by American culture It uses the lens of jazz vocals to provide perspective on racial issues previously unaddressed in the work It then examines the broader premise that jazz was a socially progressive force in American popular culture Part III concentrates on a topic that has entered into the arguments of each of the previous chapters what is jazz improvisation It outlines a pluralistic framework in which distinctive performance intentions distinguish distinctive kinds of jazz improvisation This book is a comprehensive and valuable resource for any reader interested in the intersections between jazz and philosophy Outside and Inside Reva Marin, 2020-10-16 Outside and Inside Representations of Race and Identity in White Jazz Autobiography is the first full length study of key autobiographies of white jazz musicians. White musicians from a wide range of musical, social and economic backgrounds looked to black music and culture as the model on which to form their personal identities and their identities as professional musicians. Their accounts illustrate the triumphs and failures of jazz interracialism. As they describe their relationships with black musicians who are their teachers and peers, white jazz autobiographers display the contradictory attitudes of reverence and entitlement and deference and insensitivity that remain part of the white response to black culture to the present day. Outside and Inside features insights into the development of jazz styles and culture in the urban meccas of twentieth century jazz in New Orleans, Chicago, New York and Los Angeles. Reva Marin considers the autobiographies of sixteen white male jazz instrumentalists including renowned swing era bandleaders Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw and Charlie Barnet; reed instrumentalists Mezz Mezzrow, Bob Wilber and Bud Freeman; trumpeters Max Kaminsky and Wingy Manone; guitarist Steve Jordan; pianists Art Hodes and Don Asher; saxophonist Art Pepper; guitarist and bandleader Eddie Condon; and New Orleans style clarinetist Tom Sancton. While critical race theory informs this work, Marin argues that viewing these texts simply through the lens of white privilege does not do justice to the kind of sustained relationships with black music and culture described in the accounts of white jazz autobiographers. She both insists upon the value of insider perspectives and holds the texts to rigorous scrutiny while embracing an expansive interpretation of white involvement in black culture. Marin opens new paths for study of race relations and racial, ethnic and gender identity formation in jazz studies.

Postmodernism, Traditional Cultural Forms, and African American Narratives W. Lawrence Hogue, 2013-11-12 This book explores how African American social and political movements, African American studies, independent scholars and traditional cultural forms revisit and challenge the representation of the African American as deviant other. After surveying African American history and cultural politics, W. Lawrence Hogue provides original and insightful readings of six experimental postmodern African American texts: John Edgar Wideman's Philadelphia Fire, Percival Everett's Erasure, Toni Morrison's Jazz, Bonnie Greer's Hanging by Her Teeth, Clarence Major's Reflex, and Bone Structure and Xam Wilson Cartier's Muse Echo Blues. Using traditional cultural and western forms including the blues, jazz, voodoo, virtuality, radical democracy, Jungian, African American, Collective Unconscious, Yoruba gods, black folk culture and black working class culture, Hogue reveals that these authors uncover spaces with different definitions of life that still retain a wildness and have not been completely mapped out and trademarked by normative American culture. Redefining the African American novel and the African American outside the logic, rules and values of western binary reason, these writers leave open the possibility of psychic liberation of African Americans in the West.

Only in New Orleans Luis Mirón, Brian R. Beabout, Joseph L. Boselovic, 2015-07-22 With 2015 marking the 10th commemoration of Hurricane Katrina, education reform in New Orleans continues to garner substantial local, national and international attention. Advocates and critics alike have continued to cite test scores new school providers and different theories of governance in making multiple arguments for and against how contemporary education policy is shaping public education and its role in the rebuilding of the city Rather than trying to provide a single unified account of education reform in New Orleans the chapters in this volume provide multiple ways of approaching some of the most significant questions around school choice and educational equity that have arisen in the years since Katrina This collection of research articles essays and journalistic accounts of education reform in New Orleans collectively argues that the extreme makeover of the city's public schools toward a new market based model was shaped by many local historically specific conditions In consequence while the city's schools have been both heralded as a model for other cities and derided as a lesson in the limits of market based reform the experience of education reform that has taken place in the city and its impacts on the lives of students families and educators could have happened only in New Orleans

The Fierce Urgency of Now Daniel Fischlin, Ajay Heble, George Lipsitz, 2013-06-14 The Fierce Urgency of Now links musical improvisation to struggles for social change focusing on the connections between the improvisation associated with jazz and the dynamics of human rights struggles and discourses The authors acknowledge that at first glance improvisation and rights seem to belong to incommensurable areas of human endeavor Improvisation connotes practices that are spontaneous personal local immediate expressive ephemeral and even accidental while rights refer to formal standards of acceptable human conduct rules that are permanent impersonal universal abstract and inflexible Yet the authors not only suggest that improvisation and rights can be connected they insist that they must be connected Improvisation is the creation and development of new unexpected and productive cocreative relations among people It cultivates the capacity to discern elements of possibility potential hope and promise where none are readily apparent Improvisers work with the tools they have in the arenas that are open to them Proceeding without a written score or script they collaborate to envision and enact something new to enrich their experience in the world by acting on it and changing it By analyzing the dynamics of particular artistic improvisations mostly by contemporary American jazz musicians the authors reveal improvisation as a viable and urgently needed model for social change In the process they rethink politics music and the connections between them Living Space Michael E. Rethinking Utopia David M. Bell, 2017-01-20 Over five hundred years since it was named utopia remains a vital concept for understanding and challenging the world s we inhabit even in or rather because of the condition of post utopianism that supposedly permeates them In Rethinking Utopia David M Bell offers a diagnosis of the present through the lens of utopia and then by rethinking the concept through engagement with utopian studies a variety of radical theories and the need for decolonizing praxis shows how utopianism might work within against and beyond that which exists in order to provide us with hope for a better future He proposes paying a subversive fidelity to utopia in which its three constituent terms good eu place topos and no ou are rethought to assert the importance of immanent affective relations The volume engages with a variety of practices and forms to articulate such a utopianism including popular education critical pedagogy musical improvisation and utopian literature The problems as well as the possibilities of this utopianism are explored although the problems are often revealed to be possibilities provided they are subject to material challenge Rethinking Utopia offers a way of thinking about and perhaps realising utopia that helps overcome some of the binary oppositions structuring much thinking about the topic It allows utopia to be thought in terms of place and process affirmation and negation and the real and the not yet It engages with the spatial and affective turns in the social sciences without ever uncritically being subsumed by them and seeks to make connections to indigenous cosmologies It is a cautious careful critical work punctuated by both pessimism and hope and a refusal to accept the finality of this or any world
