Moving People To Deliver Services Trade And Development:

Moving People to Deliver Services Aaditya Mattoo, Antonia Giulia Carzaniga, 2003-06-06 The WTO is today dealing with an issue that lies at the interface of two major challenges the world faces trade liberalization and international migration Greater freedom for the temporary movement of individual service suppliers is being negotiated under the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS Conditions in many developed economies ranging from aging populations to shortages of skilled labor suggest that this may be a propitious time to put labor mobility squarely on the negotiating agenda Yet there is limited awareness of how the GATS mechanism can be used to foster liber

Wto - Trade In Services Rüdiger Wolfrum, Peter-Tobias Stoll, Clemens Feinäugle, 2008 With the establishment of the WTO trade in services became part of the world trade order Volume 6 is dedicated to these rather recent developments It covers the core agreement the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS with annexes as well as the additional instruments which have been adopted later on to govern the liberalization in specific sectors Those are the Understanding on Commitments in Financial Services the Second Protocol on Financial Services the Third Protocol on the Movement of Natural Persons the Fourth Protocol on Basic Telecommunications and the Fifth Protocol which contains further rules for financial services This volume will be a valuable reference tool for the WTO community as a whole as well as for professionals and researchers who deal with one of the sectors concerned e g financial services and telecommunications Furthermore it is highly relevant in view of those sectors which are the subject of ongoing liberalization efforts or earmarked for future negotiations namely accounting legal services transport tourism environmental services legal and educational services

Moving People to Deliver Services Aaditya Mattoo, Antonia Giulia Carzaniga, 2003-01-01 This publication contains a number of papers presented at a conference organised by the World Bank and the WTO held in April 2002 to discuss how international trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS can promote greater liberalisation and labour mobility in the service sector in a way that benefits both home and host countries

Movement of Persons in Regional Economic Communities in Eastern Africa Martha Belete Hailu, 2024-12-18 The book provides a comparative assessment of the legal regimes governing movement of persons in East African region It compares the approaches used by the regional integration arrangements adopted both at the continental and sub regional level in governing mobility matters In doing so it assesses the policy coherence in the RECs and evaluates the strengths and weaknesses as well as the implementation impediments The book provides a detailed assessment of what and who is covered in multilateral regimes governing directly and indirectly mobilities and identifies lesson that can be drawn from regional integration arrangements in other parts of the world particularly the EU The book also offers analysis of the different challenges hampering implementation of the mobility regimes adopted in the selected African RECs and proposes potential policy and legal recommendation The book can be used by policy makers and researchers working on

African integrations matters Let Workers Move Sebastián Sáez, 2013-07-18 Unlike the movement of capital the movement of labor across countries remains highly restricted despite the huge global returns to international labor mobility If the benefits of temporary labor mobility are so great why is there not more movement Progress appears to have been stymied not by the forum of negotiations but by the political sensitivity associated with even temporary labor mobility To circumvent this problem the use of bilateral labor agreements which are generally not part of trade agreements has been proposed as an alternative means of increasing temporary labor mobility This book analyses the viability and performance of these agreements as a complement to other efforts to liberalize the temporary movement of people It is based on the experiences of sending and receiving countries in Europe North America the Caribbean and the Pacific Although bilateral labor agreements are not designed to promote services exports by the sending country they can be used to do so Countries can design flexible strategies that combine both international trade and bilateral labor agreements Trade agreements can provide rules and disciplines that grant market access for a wide range of activities In contrast bilateral labor agreements can allow countries especially developing countries to focus on the temporary movement of very specific categories of workers such as computer programmers or electricians within the construction sector The experiences of some Caribbean countries the Pacific Islands countries and the Philippines illustrate the importance of shared responsibility at the design implementation and institutional levels At the design level sending and receiving countries need to agree on a set of objectives and align the design to meet them At the implementation level joint and cooperative management involving state and nonstate actors on both sides is required At the institution building level needs must be jointly diagnosed capacity constraints addressed and if possible progress monitored and evaluated Bilateral labor agreements can be an attractive option for middle income countries whose migratory flows are relatively small and do not generate fears in receiving countries Source country governments should make credible commitments to ensure the temporary nature of these flows In conjunction with the private sector they should establish mechanisms for selecting the sectors to promote in target markets

Trade for Development Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de León, Patrick A. Messerlin, Julia Nielson, 2005 First Published in 2005 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company UN Millennium Development Library: Trade in Development UN Millennium Project, 2012-05-16 The Millennium Development Goals adopted at the UN Millennium Summit in 2000 are the world's targets for dramatically reducing extreme poverty in its many dimensions by 2015 income poverty hunger disease exclusion lack of infrastructure and shelter while promoting gender equality education health and environmental sustainability These bold goals can be met in all parts of the world if nations follow through on their commitments to work together to meet them Achieving the Millennium Development Goals offers the prospect of a more secure just and prosperous world for all The UN Millennium Project was commissioned by United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan to develop a practical plan of action to meet the Millennium Development Goals As an independent advisory body

directed by Professor Jeffrey D Sachs the UN Millennium Project submitted its recommendations to the UN Secretary General in January 2005 The core of the UN Millennium Project s work has been carried out by 10 thematic Task Forces comprising more than 250 experts from around the world including scientists development practitioners parliamentarians policymakers and representatives from civil society UN agencies the World Bank the IMF and the private sector The trading system is unbalanced against developing countries Correcting the imbalance will give developing countries greater economic growth potential and a more effective capacity to defeat poverty The progressive elimination of remaining trade barriers in goods and services with rich countries leading by example coupled with enough support for poor countries to bear adjustment costs and build export capacity must be part of the international pursuit to overcome poverty Preferential Trade Agreement Policies for Development Jean-Pierre Chauffour,Jean-Christophe Maur,2011-06-22 The Handbook offers an introduction to the key elements of Preferential Trade Agreements PTAs addressing the practical economic and legal aspects of the regulatory policies in PTAs International Trade, Competitive Advantage and Developing Economies Caf Dowlah,2015-07-30 Available research suggests that less developed countries have significant competitive advantage over developed countries in three major areas of international trade agriculture textiles and clothing T C and cross border labor mobility Incidentally these are also the trade sectors which experienced widespread protectionist measures especially in developed world for decade after decade Under the World Trade Organization WTO which replaced the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade GATT in 1995 much of the restrictions in T C trade has been phased out but still this sector faces much higher tariff and non tariff barriers than any other manufacturing sector in world economy The agricultural sector also experienced significant dismantling of deeply entrenched trade barriers under the WTO over the course of last two decades but the sector still remains plagued with quite extensive domestic supports export subsidies and tariff barriers At the same time despite both theoretical expositions and empirical trends point to significant potential gains from cross border labor mobility the sector remains mired in a complex quagmire of economic and political restrictions around the world Thus all three sectors in which less developed countries have exports interests still remain less liberalized than the sectors in which developed countries have exports interests This book provides an in depth and up to date scholarly analysis of all three trade sectors agriculture T C and cross border labor mobility with a penetrating scrutiny of historical backgrounds and developments crosscurrents of interests and perspectives of both developed and developing countries and evolving trade patterns and potentials in a more liberalized and globalized world economy The book also identifies critical economic issues and options for less developed countries in the WTO negotiations for further liberalization of agriculture T C and cross border labor mobility This volume will be an important point of reference for students scholars and practitioners of international trade economic development development economics and WTO related issues Foundations of International Migration Law Brian Opeskin,Richard Perruchoud,Jillyanne Redpath-Cross,2012-09-27 A stimulating survey of the key themes in international migration law Service Provision and Migration Simon J. Tans, 2017-07-03 This book investigates how liberalization of service provision related to movement of natural persons takes shape within EU and WTO law It provides an overview and analysis of the implementation of the identified obligations derived from EU law and the GATS in the Dutch legal order and that of the United Kingdom A thorough investigation of the chosen strategies in each legal order is provided including a comparison of the differences and similarities between these strategies The resulting overview leads to insight into the tension that exists between the international obligations related to service mobility of the two investigated states on the one hand and their migration law and access to the labour market legislation on the other A Handbook of International Trade in Services Aaditya Mattoo, Robert M. Stern, Gianni Zanini, 2008 This title provides a comprehensive introduction to the key issues in trade and liberalization of services Providing a useful overview of the players involved the barriers to trade and case studies in a number of service industries this is ideal for policymakers and students interested in trade Reclaiming Development in the World Trading System Yong-Shik Lee, 2016-10-20 In this second edition Lee provides extensive coverage of international trade law from an economic development perspective International Trade in Services and Domestic Regulations Panagiotis Delimatsis, 2007-12-27 This book examines the regulation of services within the WTO It examines the problem of reconciling a liberal system of trade in services with national governments ability to protect social values through service regulation The book analyses the existing legal framework and assesses the potential of ongoing trade negotiations Developing Countries and the Multilateral Trade Regime Donatella

Alessandrini, 2010-08-10 This book explores the way in which development has functioned within the multilateral trade regime since de colonisation In particular it investigates the shift from early approaches to development under the GATT to current approaches to development under the WTO It argues that a focus on the creation and transformation of a scientific apparatus that links forms of knowledge about the so called Third World with forms of power and intervention is crucial for understanding the six decades long development enterprise of both the GATT and the WTO The book is both topical and necessary given the emphasis on the current round of negotiations of the WTO The Doha Development Round has been premised on two assumptions Firstly that the international community has undertaken an unprecedented effort to address the imbalances of the multilateral trading regime with respect to the position of its developing country members Secondly that its successful conclusion represents an historic imperative and a political necessity for developing countries Through a sustained analysis of the interaction between development thinking and trade practices the book questions both assumptions by showing how development has always occupied a central position within the multilateral trading regime Thus rather than asking the question of what needs to be done in order to achieve development the book examines the way in which development has operated and still operates to produce important and often unacknowledged power relations Intense controversy surrounds the issue of the relationship between trade and development This book is novel in examining the emergence of the international trade regime in the context of the history of the concept of development that may be traced back at least to the time of the League of Nations This is a very welcome and original contribution to the field that should generate new discussions and understanding about the law of international trade Antony Anghie University of Utah

International Economic Law and National Autonomy Susy Frankel, 2010-10-14 International commitments may sit uneasily with national pressures in the best of times This age of economic uncertainty brings these tensions into sharper relief This volume draws together thirteen analyses of this tension in a wide array of contexts including each of the three main pillars of the World Trade Organization international investment law and arbitration and the international financial institutions The essays feature internationally recognised experts addressing topical examples of international economic law obligations clashing with domestic political interests For example Professor Robert Howse of New York University Law School addresses issues of globalization and whether international and national interests can in today's world be considered separate while Ko Yung Tung the former Director General of the World Bank looks at trends in investment treaty arbitration and considers what the future may hold in light of the recent financial crisis the rise of China as an economic powerhouse and other factors

Liberalizing Trade in Services Bernard M. Hoekman, 2006 Abstract Since the mid 1980s a substantial amount of research has been undertaken on trade in services Much of this is inspired by the World Trade Organization or regional trade agreements especially the European Union but an increasing number of papers focus on the impacts of services sector liberalization This paper surveys the literature focusing on contributions that investigate the determinants of international trade and investment in services the potential gains from greater trade and liberalization and efforts to cooperate to achieve such liberalization through trade agreements It concludes that there is increasing evidence that services liberalization is an important source of potential welfare gains but relatively little research has been done that can inform the design of international cooperation both trade agreements and development assistance so as to more effectively promote development objectives

Trade and Health Chantal Blouin, Jody Heymann, Nick Drager, 2008-01-21 Seeking improved health and increased income have long been common goals Those who make the case that free trade will help everyone argue that the growth from increased trade will be shared and will improve people's lives But they have not answered the fundamental question of how to formulate trade policy to simultaneously achieve growth and benefit health Trade and Health answers this question by exploring the entire array of avenues through which trade affects health and examining a number of case studies on how best to achieve policies that integrate health objectives The contributors represent the full range of stakeholders in the trade health debate medical professionals civil society representatives academics from a range of disciplines and negotiators and policy makers at the national and global levels Contributors include Bijit Bora WTO Rupa Chanda IIMB Diana Chigas Tufts Carlos Correa U of Buenos Aires Eric Dagenais Industry Canada Alison Earle Harvard David P Fidler Indiana Anabel Gonz lez WTO Ronald Labonte Ottawa Cha aim Pachnee MOPH

The World Bank Research Program 2004 World Bank, 2005

The World Bank's research is intended to address critical issues and problems facing member governments in developing and transition economies How can the governments of the poorest countries generate enough revenue to provide the education and health services essential to reducing poverty and promoting growth and development How can poor countries attract investors to build the infrastructure their economies need How can they develop systems to bring clean water to the 2 billion people without it today How can they train teachers and bring to class the 115 million children who have not yet received any education And how can rich countries be persuaded to lower market barriers helping to reverse the decline in export prices for poor countries that has left them earning less from trade today than in the 1970s These are the types of questions that are addressed in this edition of The World Bank Research Program Abstracts from Current Studies This volume reports on research projects initiated under way or completed from July 2003 through June 2004 It covers 151 research projects on several broad development related issues including agriculture health education environment infrastructure investment climate and more The abstract for each project describes the questions addressed the analytic methods used the findings to date and policy implications
