The New Deal

Reading Comprehension

Read the passage and answer the questions.

The Great Depression was a severe economic downturn that began in 1929 and lasted until the mid-1930s. It was the longest and deepest economic recession in the history of the United States.

The Federal Reserve Board, which was created in 1914, was the first step in the government's response to the crisis. It was designed to provide a stable financial system and to prevent future crises.

The New Deal was a series of programs and policies that were implemented by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in response to the crisis. It was designed to provide relief for the unemployed and to stimulate economic growth.

The New Deal was a landmark event in American history. It was the first time that the federal government had taken such a direct role in the economy. It was also the first time that the government had provided relief for the unemployed.

The New Deal was a success. It helped to end the Great Depression and to create a more stable financial system. It was also the first time that the government had provided relief for the unemployed.
